FROM THE PENINSULA.

Army of the Potomac at Mechanicsville-Communication with the White House-Rebel Upinion of General Grant-Ene-my's (avairy Routed by Sheridan-Tranquillity at General Butler's Headquar.

FORTRESS MONROE, May 31.—Gen. Grant's communication with the White House is complete, and all works well. Major Wentz, superintendent of the Governm. nt railroads, arrived here this morning with engines, cars, and material for building a railroad from West Point and the White House to Richmond, when it may be-required. Richmond papers of Monday, the 30th, have been received here. They have changed their views with regard to the military ability of General Grant, and say that they have been underrating him. They say that he is smarter than they had dreamed of, and manifest some fears in regard to the safety of Gen. Lee, or rather as to his success in repelling the Yankes A messenger from General Grant reperts that on Monday morning our army had reached Mechanicsville, with but little opposition. Sheridan had rou'ed the enemy's cavalry at all points, and captured many prisoners.

Heavy canonading was heard during Mon-day in the direction of Mechanicsville. ANOTHER DISPATCH. 4 O'CLOCK P. M .- Steamer Thomas Powell arrived from Bermuda Hundred. All quiet to-day with Gen. Butler's forces. Steamer C. W. Thomas, from White House, arrived with bearer of dispatches from Gen.

Grant. The highest hopes for success are entertained by those competent to judge.

Headquarters Virginia and North Carolina, in the field, May 22, 1864 .- General Orders No. 66 .-In accordance with orders from the War Depariment, and for sanitary reasons, no bodies will be disinterred in this department until the first of October. By order of Major Gen eral Butler.

FROM THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC. Particulars of the Flank Movement-The Crossing of the Pamunkey-Cavalry Fight with Fitzhugh Lee.

[Associated Press Correspondence. OLD CHURCH TAVERN, Va., May 30, via Washington, June 1.—We have again flanked the enemy. Our forces were withdrawn to the north side of the North Anna river last Thursday and Friday. General Sheridan, with Tor-bett's and Gregg's divisions of cavalry, marched all night, and on Thursday morning the fords on the Pamunkey were in our possession.

At Dabney's Ferry, Baker's North Carolina brigade opposed our advance, and resisted us when we laid our pontoon bridge. Generals Custer's and Deems' brigades drove the enemy off to Hanover Court House, killing many and capturing a large number of prisoners. The 6th corps was soon at our heels.

came the 2d, 5th and 9th. Lee was doomed to disappointment, and his elaborate fortifications would not serve him. Grant was found on his right flank, and he must away to Richmond. On Saturday morning Gregg's division of cavalry was fired into near Hawes's Shop. Davies's brigade was in the advance. The woods seemed alive with the rebels, and soon began to resound with sharp volleys from our carbines. In a short time Davies's entire brigade was fighting in earnest. Colonel Gregg was ordered to Davies's support, and the remainder of the division were hotly engaged. Fitzbugh Lee commanded the rebels in person, and his cavalry corps were all fighting, as-sisted by a brigade of mounted fire-eaters from South Carolina, commanded by Col. Butler. These men had just arrived from the seaboard and they admit the warmth of the reception our troops gave them. Conspicuous in the battle were the 4th, 13th and 16th Pennsylvania, the 1st New Jersey, 6th Ohio and 1st Massachusetts regiments. For a long time these men held Fitzhugh back, and all our cavalrymen engaged behaved with distinguished bravery. We found the rebels strongly entrenched in this woods, with heavy guns in position, but with every advantage upon their side, they were badly beaten, and sent flying from the field in great confusion, leaving their dead and wounded in our hands, and over 100 prisoners.

Gen. Gregg maintained the unequal contest from noon till two o'clock p. m., when Gen. Custer came up and formed his squadrons into line and charged the enemy s works. Gen. Gregg's command advanced at the same time with a cheer. Many a brave fellow fell in this daring assault, but the works were ours, and soon not an armed rebel could be found for three miles.

The 13th and 16th Pennsylvania, and the 5th and 7th Michigan suffered a heavy loss. Too much credit cannot be given to this brigade, which fought with unprecedented calmness amid the storm of grape and canister. Our loss will amount to 350 killed and wounded and missing. The rebels used grape and canister

Our infantry were all up the same evening, and long strong lines of fortifications were erected, so that if Lee should attempt to cross our path we were prepared. He did not, however, and next morning our newly made breastworks were abandoned, and the column moved on toward Richmond.

On Monday, the 30th, Major Decland had two squadrons of the 17th Pennsylvania cavalry on picket duty. He held the road leading from Cold Harbor to Old Church Tavern. About noon his pickets were driven in, and the enemy appeared in heavy force. Col. Deems sent the oth and 6th New York regiments to reinforce Major Decland, when a heavy engagement ensued. John Auglin, quartermaster of the 17th Pennsylvania, was killed, while fighting in the skirmish line.

Gen Merritt soon arrived with his brigade, and a battery of brass Napoleons were trained on the rebels and opened fire. The 6th Pa. was sent in on the left of the line, and charged the rebel flank. Here Capt. Seiper was wounded and Lieutenant Martin killed. Gen. Custer nextentered and a general charge was ordered when the rebels were swept from our sight They fled, leaving a large number of their dead and wounded on the field. Lieutenant Blunt of the 6th New York, and Captain Tice of the 17th Pennsylvania, were wounded. Fitzhugh Lee was baffled and foiled in his efforts to stop our communication with the

Our advance is now (Monday) near Mechanics ville. On the left Warren was using his cannon freely all day. He drove in the rebel picket lines about four miles. Lee's army occupy the trenches about Mea-

To day our communication with the White House was opened. The Pamunkey is full of transports and gunboats. We expect General Smith to join us with his command in two days. Let us stop a moment, gentlemen, and look into this matter. Facts are better than fears, and principle is better than prejudice. You are suffering-yes, suffering, there is no other word for it-under the delusion that the amount of gold and silver coin in the country is an equivalent of its wealth. Now, do you know that the highest financial authorities have never estimated this amount at over two hundred and fifty millions, and it is probably much less, even in time of peace. But suppose we admit that it is three hundred millions; and now do you know that, according to the United States Census of 1860, the wealth of the country-its real and personal property-was estimated (rather too low than too high) at fifteens thousand millions. If you will just take your pencil and cypher out the proportion that three hundred millions in specie bears to afteen thousand millions of property, you will discover that it is-what? fifty per cent? No Twenty-five per cent.! No!-but exactly two per cent.,-that is, the whole amount of specie in the country never was two per sent, or a fittieth part of the specie value of the property; and if, at any one time, the whole property of the country had been forced to sale for the specie in the country, it would not have brought Specie, or the currency that may stand for it, is only the convenient and recognized medium for making an exchange of products. It represents property in the market, property in transit, but never the fixed property of a nation. Money is the lubricator. It don't make values; it simply lubricates the machinery, and keeps the wheels of commerce running smoothly. When too abundant, the wheels run too fast; and when scarce, there is too much triction. And now, Mr. Faintheart, can you pick a flaw in our statement? Is it not absolute truth? But what shall we say to Mr. Weakkness, who is afraid of bankruptcy, and Mr. Neverthink, who is only afraid of his bank-balance. If Mr. Weakknees is in debt, it is now easy to get out. Pay up while money is plenty, and be

You are afraid, that gold is going up or paper going down about out of sight, and you wish to invest this balance in some productive property. Will you buy a house worth only $10,000 in specie, and pay for it $18,000 in currency? Suppose you wish to sell that house after the resumption of specie payments, it will bring you only $10,000, and you will have lost exactly $8,000.
